

Please do not allow this obvious attempt at a serious restraint of trade by the NAB against XM radio to stand. Such a process will simply support any old technology to torpedo new approaches. Shouldn't cable and digital dish TV be prohibited from providing weather and other services which compete with broadcast? The only wedge I can see is that the FCC must have jurisdiction on XM because it is broadcast. XM deals with broadcast radio and TV by BUYING feeds from the broadcast and cable products which it CHOOSES. If XM weather/traffic is so good and cannot be replicated, let someone BUY it and broadcast it, inserting their commercials as the feed repeats. When I am in my car in Beltway traffic, I don't need Detroit or Boston traffic. Suggest to the NAB that they avoid Luddite causes in the future.
